• 'Tis the Season!

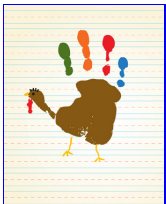

Are you already stressed about the holidays? Instead of braving the crowds this Friday, shop online with us instead!

Guest blogger Angela Mahoney, creator of the I Can Work! program, has another helpful holiday idea. She's had success with a gift wrapping "business" in schools, having students in the prevocational program plan, market, and run the business. Get a step-by-step guide to setting up a business in your school here.

The I Can Work! program is a five-module course designed to integrate communication skills with hands-on prevocational training in the areas of job readiness, clerical, retail, food service, and the grocery industry.

Barbara Smith, M.S., OTR/L (author of The Recycling Occupational Therapist and From Rattles to Writing) is back on our blog with another creative post. Developing Finger Dexterity explores the concept of developing finger isolation and the pincer grasp. Also from Barbara are these new Weavable Toys, perfect for small hands!

We hope you have a very happy Thanksgiving!

Featured Products

From the 17th Annual Great Beginnings Conference

Chewy Skool Kid Stretchy Pendant

Designed by a School based Occupational Therapist in the abstract shape of a kiddo, this stretchy Chewable Necklace will become a favorite among chews! It is softer than other sensory chews but just as strong and resilient.

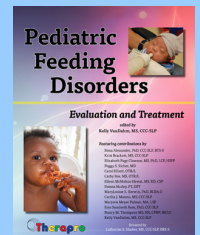

Lollacup

Includes a flexible straw that is narrow, which helps control the flow of liquid, and is valve-free, for easy sipping. It even has a weighted end that keeps the straw anchored in the liquid, even when the cup is tipped.

Pediatric Feeding Disorders: Evaluation and Treatment

Brings together 14 leading clinicians, the latest research, and interdisciplinary perspectives on pediatric feeding disorders!

Seminars

All seminars are free, and are held Saturdays from 9-11 AM in our Showroom.
