● Inflation in the Classroom

The therapy ball has been used in the classroom for many different purposes. In addition to helping students to focus and attend, some studies have shown that using the ball for classroom seating can improve student academic performance. Some classroom teachers might disagree. A ball in the classroom can be distracting and disruptive. For them inflatable seat cushions and wedges are a helpful substitute, simulating most of the beneficial effects of an inflated ball.

It would be ideal if we had a ball that would be stationary; and now we do! The AlertSeat consists of an inflatable ball in a variety of sizes, a durable zip-off, washable cover with Velcro straps to secure the ball to a stable steel wire base on six rubber feet. It all comes with a pump and instructions. As an option you can add a dolly on casters to give mobility to the AlertSeat. The AlertSeat ball and cover have a 3-year warranty with exceptions for damage due to vandalism and deliberate abuse.
