● Making Sensory Connections

Karen Moore, OTR/L developed the Sensory Connection Program while working with adults in several psychiatric units in central Massachusetts. She took ideas from sensory integration theory and from sensory integration treatment (thought at the time to be applicable only to children) and applied them to treating adult patients with mental health problems, and found dramatic results. Karen utilizes the Allen Cognitive Level Screen (ACLS) as a way to help determine a patient's cognitive level and the appropriate Sensory Connection Program that fits their needs.

Karen Moore is this year's invited Keynoter at the Allen Cognitive Symposium on November 6-8 in Redondo Beach, CA. The title of her presentation is "The Sensory Connection to Cognition." Over the years Karen has expanded her program resources, including The Sensory Connection Self-Regulation Workbook: Learning to Use Sensory Activities to Manage Stress and The Sensory Connection Games CD. We hope to show a pre-publication prototype of her latest book, The Sensory Connection Curriculum for Self-Regulation.
