• Destinations!

Nashville proved to be, as advertised, a destination city, attracting the largest attendance in the American Occupational Therapy Association's \(AOTA\) history. Conference speakers and authors, Carolyn Murray-Slutsky and Betty Paris (Autism Interventions, Is It Sensory or Is It Behavior, among others) joined us to answer therapist's questions about their 2 workshops and publications. In a poster session Victoria Nackley and Debbie Marr presented a history of 15 studies showing the benefits of using Sensory Stories to help children with autism and other disorders cope with the stresses of everyday activities.

Among the many popular items were our 3 games, Letter Treasure Hunt, Trunks and NOVENOPS! Ginger McDonald, OTR/L, co-author of Self-Care with Flair!, joined us as a staff member greeting our visitors and answering questions about our products.

Hats off to Diana Mendez-Hohmann for setting up the booth display and managing the hectic 3 days of the exposition!

We look forward to next year's AOTA conference in Chicago, another great destination!

In April celebrities, caregivers and families across the globe marked Autism Awareness month. Therapro's observance included an invitation to exhibit at a meeting sponsored by Community Resources for Autism, an organization that has been supporting and servicing the community. The conference took place in one of the most picturesque locations in the state of Massachusetts, at the top of Mt. Tom in a section of the Connecticut River Valley known as the Pioneer Valley.
